Haliburton restaurant latest break-in target

A break-in at the Kozy Korner Restaurant in Haliburton is the latest in a series of similar crimes committed in the Haliburton County area during the past few weeks.

The restaurant, on Haliburton's Main Street, was broken into sometime during the night of April 22. A quantity of cash was removed from the premises.

The police are unsure of how access was gained as there is no indication of forced entry, however, it is believed the intruder left by a rear door.

The investigation is continuing under the direction of Constable Jim Solway.

Weekend break-in

An undetermined amount of cash and cigarettes was removed from the Minden Easton's Valu-Mart store on Highway 35 on the night of April 18, Easter weekend.

The intruders gained access to the building by cutting a hole in the rear wall of the building and dragging the store's safe to the back of the building, where it was forced open.

The break-in was discovered by the store manager, Bill Kulas, when he visited the premises April 19.

The investigating officer is Constable Mike Maher.

Post office

A break-in at the Cardiff Post Office on the weekend of April 11-13 is still under investigation, according to spokesman for the Apsley detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The intruders gained access to the building via a rear window and removed a safe from the premises. No arrests have been made in the case.

Police are requesting the assistance of anyone with information which may assist in the investigation. They are asked to contact Constable Savage at the Apsley OPP office. The phone number is 656-4431.

Kinmount Legion

A break-in at the Kinmount Branch of the Royal Canadian Legion was reported on the morning of April 21, according to the Cobocok detachment of the Ontario Provincial Police.

The intruders entered the building by forcing a door. Taken in the break-in was a quantity of liquor and cigarettes estimated in value at nearly $500.

The incident is being investigated by Constable Dan Fitzpatrick.

Council backs CHACE rezoning application

Anson, Hindon and Minden council has supported an application for a zoning amendment to permit CHACE to operate a day-care centre on Prince Street in Minden.

The application was submitted by Mabel Brannigan. Brannigan owns the house now being used by CHACE for a day-care centre.

CHACE was forced to make a rezoning application through the property owner when a neighbour of the day-care centre, Edna Trumbull, appeared before council to complain that the centre - it was still then being set up - would cause her own property to be devalued.

Trumbull's property abuts the day-care centre property for 150 feet.

She said that council should not have allowed

CHACE to set up a day-care centre beside her because the zoning of the neighbourhood makes no provision for such an institution.

At a public meeting on March 26, council advised CHACE to apply for a zoning change if the organization intended to continue to run its day-care centre.

Minister, leader disagree with Ward's proposal

A suggestion from the provincial Progressive Conservative candidate, Art Ward, that Ontario Place be sold and the revenue used to finance six other similar attractions throughout the province has not drawn a favourable response from his own party leader or from the Minister of Tourism, Victoria-Haliburton MPP, John Eakins.

A spokesman for Larry Grossman, said the Progressive Conservative party leader was not in favour of selling the complex on the Ontario waterfront. It was indicated that his position represented the stand of the party as well.

"Mr. Grossman applauds the innovative thinking the proposal from Mr. Ward suggests," the press spokesman for the Tory leader said, "but Mr. Grossman is not in favour of selling Ontario Place."

Ward had suggested the sale of the attraction would generate some $110 million, and that this money could then be used to assist in the construction of similar

Archie Stouffer band wins Bancroft awards

The Archie Stouffer Elementary School Grade 8 band captured first place in the North Hastings Music Festival held April 22 in Bancroft. Led by music teacher Glen Carter, the students not only captured the group award, but also earned individual honours.

Among those award winners were: Brian Martin first and Kevin Fairrey third in the snare drum solo. Holly Archer second - flute solo. Melanie Maxwell second - clarinet solo. Rob Ackerblade first and Karen Cooper second - trumpet solo. Brian Martin, first - trombone solo.

Placing second in the mixed ensemble were: Marian Graham, Scott McKinley, Kelly Newell, Nicole Plooard, Holly Archer, Mark Klages, Michael Muli, Tim Reid and Kevin Fairrey. Third in the ensemble competition were: Patty Amyotte, Karen Cooper, Jaime Dollo, Chantal McKnight, Marjorie Phillips, Bart Whiting, Bob Ackerblade, Dustin Davis and Tammy Walker.

Placing first in the woodwind duet were Kelsey Newbatt and Holly Archer while Melanie Maxwell and Chantal McKnight tied with Nicole Plooard and Arlene Simmons for third place.

In the brass duets, Rob Ackerblade and Karen Cooper placed second while Mike Muli and Jaime Dollo were third.

The following students placed first in three classes of the alto sax solo competition, Jarett Gentle, Mark Klages and Dustin Davis.

Acid rain report

The following report was prepared using information gathered at the Ontario Ministry of the Environment Acid Rain testing station in Dorset. The report is distributed by Environment Canada. There was only one precipitation event during the latest reporting period:

- on April 12, 5mm of rain, pH 3.9, from Ohio, New York and southern Ontario.

Environmental damage is usually observed in sensitive areas regularly receiving precipitation with pH less than 4.7. Readings of 4.0 pH or less are considered dangerous. The lower the reading, the more acidic the precipitation.

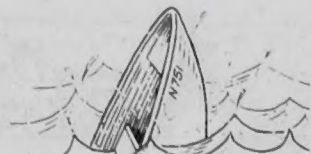

Members of the Grade 8 band proudly display the ribbons won at the North Hastings Music Festival in Bancroft April 22.

Ward proposal finds few backers facilities in six locations across the province.

Commenting on the idea of building new attractions across the province, the spokesman said the party leader thought it was a great idea for boosting tourism, but it was not clear where the funding for such undertakings would come from.

The Minister of Tourism and the likely Liberal candidate who Mr. Ward will be challenging in the next provincial election, said "I don't agree with the idea at all."

He noted that Ontario Place has been identified as one of the top ten attractions in North America. "The facility provides an opportunity for families to visit at a moderate price. This is the sort of thing we need in the province."

Eakins said the province was subsidizing the operation of the attraction, estimating the support at $2 million annually. Eakins justified the subsidy by pointing out it allowed families to enjoy the many features of Ontario Place without spending a great deal of money. He suggested that if Ward's proposal was designed to save that money, he could find greater savings in the millions of dollars spent in assistance to the resort industry in the province. Mr. Ward is the operator of a resort on Lake Kashagawigamog.

Eakins credited Conservatives John Robarts and Allan Grossman, the father of the present PC leader with "foresight" in creating the Ontario Place attraction 15 years ago. He said the facility is serving the province well, and "...is part of the exciting growth taking place on the Toronto waterfront."

The minister expressed surprise that Mr. Ward, who served for three years on the Ontario Place board of directors, wanted to sell the facility.

Responding to the suggestion that the proceeds from the proposed sale could be used to finance six new facilities, Eakins suggested this was the area where private enterprise should step in. He noted that his ministry has assistance programs in place for such developments and that he would be willing to look at any proposal like this.

"It is simply a very bad idea to consider the sale of Ontario Place," Eakins said. "It will not be sold while I head this Ministry."

Museum to tape area pioneers

If a plan by the Minden County Town Museum Committee works out, the History of Haliburton County could be recorded for posterity on video tape.

The Museum committee is applying to the Ministry of Citizenship and Culture for a grant of $2200 toward the cost of video recording equipment to tape interviews of county residents who arrived in Haliburton as pioneers.

Anson, Hindon and Minden council agreed to support the museum committee's grant application at its meeting last Thursday.

The equipment is expected to cost about $3,000, of which the museum committee would raise $750.

It isn't known how long the ministry will take to decide on the grant application. "I'd like it to be tomorrow, but it could take as long as a year," said museum committee member Laura Kirkwood in an interview.

Council plans Ingoldsby beach

By May 24th weekend, the Anson, Hindon and Minden council hopes work will be complete on a piece of Kashagawigamog shoreline that is being made into a public beach.

The beach is located just outside the settlement of Ingoldsby, on both sides of a piece of land known as Pine Point.

Reeve Sinc Nesbitt said in an interview that municipal land on either side of Pine Point will be cleared of brush down to the lake and topsoil added.

He said parking spaces will also be made at the side of the township road.

For many years, Pine Point itself was used as a beach by local residents. However, last year the owners of the point purchased the municipal road allowance - it runs along the shore line - and posted private property signs.

Last summer when the road allowance was sold, council promised to prepare a new public beach to make up for the loss of Pine Point.

Over 60 area residents attended the meeting.

Now that council has supported the application for a zoning amendment, a bylaw must now be worked out to put the zoning change into effect. It will be a "site specific" amendment, meaning that it will apply only to the property on which the day-care centre is located.

However objectors to the day care centre will have an opportunity to express their views to council at a public meeting, probably held in June. The purpose of the June meeting will be to collect information on public opinion regarding the zoning change.

If there are no objections, council will pass bylaw.

And if within 35 days after the bylaw has been passed, there are still no objections, the bylaw will come into effect.

But if objections are raised, the bylaw must go to the Ontario Municipal Board for a hearing.

The zoning bylaw now in place was passed in 1967. A new zoning bylaw for Anson, Hindon and Minden is now before the OMB. If bylaw 86-26 is passed, approved by the OMB, CHACE will be permitted to run its day-care centre, because it makes provision for such an institution in Minden's Prince Street neighbourhood.

It is not known how long the OMB will take to come to a decision on the new zoning bylaw.

Looking to the future

Kudos to the Anson, Hindon and Minden municipal council for endorsing the efforts of the County of Haliburton Agency for Child Enrichment, known to most as CHACE, to establish a child care centre on Prince Street. At the meeting last Thursday evening, the council formally undertook the first step to begin the rezoning of the property.

There is little doubt about the need for the facility. The age of the two income family is upon us and parents are looking for a structured, approved setting in which they can confidently leave their children. CHACE Day Care offer that service.

The council's endorsement of the CHACE effort demonstrates leadership and direction. It suggests that the council is looking to the future of the community and the services that will be of value in the years to come.

The endorsement, also recognizes the township's new zoning bylaw, currently before the Ontario Municipal Board awaiting endorsement. Under the provision of that bylaw, the operation of a day care centre, such as that organized now by CHACE would be permitted in that location. It is highly likely the new zoning bylaw will receive the approval of the OMB in the near future, eliminating the need for the present rezoning application. If the council believes in the provisions of the new zoning bylaw, then in fact, it has no choice but to also back the present temporary rezoning.

Speak out

Stumped

A man in the wilderness

- by Arthur Black -

When I think of California, I think of urban excess. I think particularly about that monstrous, seething metropolitan carbuncle called Los Angeles -- hustling and bustling under its perpetual wreath of smog. One colossal traffic jam where the automobile is king and the pedestrian a barely tolerated freak.

But there's another side of California, a savage and untamed side where the road pavers and image moulders haven't had their homogenous way. There is a wild California. And nowhere is that state wilder than in a forbidding 100-square-mile tract of land deep in the heart of the Lassen National Forest.

Here is wilderness as unsullied by man as anything Northwestern Ontario or the wilds of British Columbia can offer. It is rugged land, cross-hatched by steep cliffs, deep gorges and fast flowing mountain streams coursing through tall timber stands. And it will stay that way. By law there can be no roads, no split-levels -- not so much as a trapper's lean-to or a backpacker's privy. No loitering either. Visitors must apply for a permit to visit the area and sign a guarantee that they will leave no trace of their visit. Why so much tender loving care for a piece of backwoods?

Because a man named Ishi lived there.

His story begins, as far as we are concerned, on the night of August 29, 1911, when a California rancher with a kerosene lamp held high, stepped off his porch to calm his barking dogs. He found them snarling in a half circle around something they'd cornered behind the corral. It was crouched in the dirt, huddled against the corral fence -- a half-starved, beaten-down, near-naked man. A total stranger. Days passed and the mystery deepened. The stranger understood no English or Spanish and he refused to eat or drink. He probably would have starved himself to death if a professor of anthropology hadn't read a newspaper account about the 'wild man', tracked him down and tried a few words from the language of the Yahi, an extremely primitive Indian tribe thought to have been extinct for many years.

After several halting words from the anthropologist, the stranger's eyes brightened and he corrected the pronunciation. His voice was soft but it reverberated in anthropological circles around the world. Contact had just been made with the last surviving Stone Age man in North America.

He called himself Ishi which means 'man' in Yahi. He had lived in the Californian wilderness for about 45 years when he was captured. During that time he had seen white men -- settlers, cowboys and soldiers -- hunt down and shoot his tribesmen like vermin.

When Ishi was born there were perhaps 300 or 400 Yahis. In less than half a century Ishi saw his entire people either slaughtered or driven to starvation and disease. After the death of the last of his people, Ishi wandered alone for three years, fleeing from the slightest sound or merest glimpse or the dreaded white man. Finally, in 1911, Ishi stopped running and sat down by the corral fence waiting to be killed.

He wasn't. Thanks to the intervention of the anthropologist Ishi became a sensation. He was given a cottage on the campus of the University of Berkeley where he helped scientists unlock the secrets of his people and their Stone Age culture. They no longer had to wonder how paleolithic man made weapons or utensils -- Ishi showed them. He even revisited his wilderness with a team of scientists in tow. They watched enthralled as Ishi easily brought down rabbits, deer, even birds in flight, armed with nothing more than a bow and arrow.

Ishi spent the final years of his life in peace and plenty, living in his Berkeley campus cottage.

Ironically, the "civilizing" of Ishi, conveyed a kind of immortality on his otherwise forgotten people. The wilderness area where they lived is now officially and by government decree, sacred. Anyone caught removing artifacts or desecrating ancient campsites faces fines of up to $20,000 and the prospect of a jail sentence.

There is one other honour that the state of California has bestowed on the Yahi tribe in general and the last Yahi in particular. It's the name that's been given to the wilderness area where the Yahi led their furtive lives. If California had followed the usual form, the area would now bear the name of some political poobah or government functionary -- the Ronald Reagan Memorial Park, say -- or the Governor Orville C. Madsen Nature Preserve.

It doesn't.

The brand new, officially adopted name for this ancient piece of North America is simply: "Ishi Wilderness, California."

April means frogs. That is not to say you will see frogs; rather you may hear strange sounds coming from flooded ditches, marshy areas or inland ponds. Some of you may already have heard frog choruses; in a few areas of southern Ontario spring peepers sang after the first warm weekend in March. After nearly two weeks of above zero degrees Celsius temperatures at night and daytime temperatures ranging from 8-15 degrees Celsius, I heard two kinds of frogs: the spring peeper and the western chorus frog. For me the frog choruses take their place with the liquid trill of the red-winged blackbird as a sure indication that, whatever the weather, spring has arrived.

These early singers are quite small and, unless you know where and how to look, are seldom seen. Usually the earliest singer of all is the western chorus frog. I heard a chorus last Sunday, March 29, in a pool at the base of an abandoned quarry. The chorus was deafening, vibrating to a crescendo which reached an almost unbearable pitch. The Peterson Field Guide to Reptiles and Amphibians says that the sound "may be roughly imitated by running the finger over approximately the last 20 of the small teeth on a good quality pocket comb."

I stood studying that pond for 20 minutes before I began to pick out the frogs pulsating vocal pouches, and, in the uncertain light, that was really all I ever did see of the frog. When a noisy family with two small boys and a dog arrived, the frogs of the spring peeper and the chorus frog, the latter usually chooses more open stations for calling, while the peepers favour areas where trees and shrubs are in or near the water. Like the chorus frog, the peeper is seldom seen, except when he sings. After a period of wet weather in July, I once discovered some clinging to the inside of the woodhouse door, and sometimes, after a long wet spell, one may happen on them moving through the woods. But generally, they too, seem to vanish until next spring.

All the frogs and their tadpoles are prodigious consumers of insects and insect larvae. Hatching as they do about the same time as the first mosquito and blackfly larvae, the tadpoles are a built-in system of insect control.

If you are like me, and find the frog choruses one of the delights of spring, you might take a look at the places you have heard frogs in the past. How many of those places are still there this spring? Frogs must have undisturbed pools and marshy areas to breed in; they are creatures of "the wetlands". But these are the areas that are most threatened by agricultural drainage and by new subdivisions.

For a long time the value of wetlands was poorly understood; people thought of swamps and marshes as insect breeders and waste fell silent, resuming again after a minute. One of the boys searched vainly for the author of the noise, finally abandoning the search in disgust. Patience and stillness were the tools for seeing this elusive fellow, almost invisible in gray or brown against last year's cattails. After breeding, this frog will disappear into the cover of sedges and low shrubs adjacent to woodlands, undetected until it is time to call again.

Patience and stillness are needed in finding the pond noisemakers

The spring peeper, a pretty little cream-to-brown frog usually marked on the back with a dark 'X' is the singer that most of us know and listen for. The field guide describes their song as "a high, piping whistle, a single clear note repeated at intervals of a second."

If you have heard the spring peeper chorus, you will forgive the field guide for waxing poetic in next part of the description: "A large chorus of peepers heard from a distance sounds like sleighbells."

This sweet singer is seldom more than one inch long. Although there is often an overlap in the territories land. Now we know that the marsh is infinitely complex providing spawning grounds for fish, breeding places for birds and amphibians, shelter for fur-bearing animals, and, in the winter, food and shelter for deer.

It has also been discovered that wetlands are vital regulators of ground water and perform a cleansing function by removing certain toxic substances from the water. Wetlands are disappearing at an alarming rate.

The Federation of Ontario Naturalists is currently involved in a program to encourage preservation of remaining wetlands. If you are interested in learning more about the value of wetlands, please send a stamped, self addressed envelope to F.O.N., 355 Lesmill Road, Don Mills, Ontario M3B 2W8 and we will send you a free pamphlet called To Know a Wetland is to Love a Wetland or, if you want to undo some of the damage that has been done, the pamphlet, How to Build a Marsh.

What do you think about...

The crisis on Canadian farms

by Bill Kulas

Are farm foreclosures that rocked Canadian farmers during the recession years from 1980 to 1982 returning?

Ottawa's Farm Credit Corporation, which put a hold on farm foreclosures almost two years ago, may end that moratorium soon. Canada's total farm debt is about $22 billion.

In Ontario alone, one third of Ontario farmers carry 85% of the province's $4.3 billion farm debt. Those loans are only covered by 37% in actual farm assets.

According to certain Farm Credit Corporation officials that represents about 40% more debt load than most farmers can handle. One bright spot is that Ontario farmers net income for 1986 shot up 41 per cent.

With higher incomes, interest rates being down and financial assistance flowing to Ontario farmers in the form of provincial subsidy programs, some farmers are hopefully using the relief to pay down their debt loads.

While there is some good news in our part of the country, bad news is gripping western farmers. There, farmers face the worst conditions since the 1930's due to falling world grain prices. We're talking about hundreds of millions of dollars in lost farm revenues.

Many farmers in our country have little hope of turning their failing farms around and the thought of foreclosing and shoving thousands of farmers off their land is a political nightmare.

Who's at fault? Is it the government and the Canadian banks for lending out large sums of money to the farming sector, knowing full well that many farm operations were way over-extended.

Could it be the fault of the farmers for taking on too much of a gamble? If the government and banking institutions start calling in their loans and the result is mass farm foreclosures then even bigger problems might occur.

The lenders will have to sell off the farms by dumping the properties on the market. That would lower the value of existing farm properties and possibly put the loans of solvent farms into jeopardy.

Is farm foreclosure the answer to reducing the staggering farm debt? What do you think? Let's hear the view from our local farmers.

Honouring our athletes

- by John Eakins, MPP -

I want to use this week's column to reflect on those who take part in athletics, whether it be at the international stage or on a ball diamond in Minden.

Earlier this month, I hosted my Ministry's annual Ontario Sports Awards Banquet. Dozens of awards, plaques and scrolls were presented to outstanding citizens of Ontario who contributed to athletics and recreation in the province.

Some, like Ben Johnson, Ontario's Athlete of the Year for the second year in a row, were recognized for their efforts in competing for Canada with the world's best. Others, like Donna Roberts of Little Britain, will receive an Achievement Award for her part on the Pickering softball team which won the Junior Women's National Championships last year.

One of the really outstanding athletes at the banquet was Joanne Bouw of Windsor, who was presented by my Ministry with Ontario's first Disabled Athlete of the Year award. The Dr. Robert Jackson award was presented to Joanne for her accomplishments at the Cerebral Palsy World Championships held in Belgium last year. The Windsor athlete won gold medals and set world records in the shotput, discus and javelin events.

In addition, Joanne is a graduate pharmacist, complete this demanding program at the University of Toronto this year.

It is very encouraging to me to see so many of our athletes achieving their goals at home and around the world. To try and produce more outstanding female athletes, my Ministry also sponsors a new program called FAME. Female Athletes Motivating Excellence, is a program which encourages young women to take part in athletics. To achieve this goal, approximately 40 outstanding women athletes tour the province discussing the benefits and rewards of taking part in athletic pursuits.

Last week, Ann Peale, a world class race walker, and Penny Zavitz, an outstanding equestrian athlete visited several schools in this riding to share their experiences with young women. Hopefully, through their efforts, Victoria-Haliburton and Ontario will continue to produce athletes who can compete with the best in Canada and abroad.

Who knows, the young athletes running around the field in Haliburton or on the ball diamond in Burnt River may be one of the athletes to take Ben Johnson's seat at a banquet in years to come.

from the chamber

by Shawn Hagerman

This month has been a particularly busy month. The Chamber has been at the Sportsmen's Show, Cullen Barns, Travel and Leisure and finally this week we will be attending the Eaton Show. The marketing committee will be putting forth a report, summarizing in their opinion the value of each of the shows, so that next year's planning will be made easier.

There was a board meeting last Thursday and the number one topic on the agenda was the discussion of our budget for the 1987-88 year. The discussion centred around keeping our existing programs moving along, while at the same moment, reducing the chamber deficit.

Any chamber member whose dues are still outstanding, please send them along as soon as possible. If you believe as I sincerely do, that the chamber is the voice for the business community in Haliburton, and for stimulating economic activity within our region, then please support us by bringing your membership up to date.

Dante Lacarde, one of the membership committee, along with other members of his committee, are planning to do a membership survey this summer. This will be helpful in determining the size of the various businesses that belong to our chamber, and will also provide us with helpful feedback. Please welcome them all when they call.

Have you met Cindy Rodley who has been working on a part time basis at our chamber office since last fall? She has done a tremendous job of making sure that things run smoothly at the office and has provided a warm welcome to all those who drop by. She and her husband Harry have Hill Crest Haven in West Guilford.

If you are passing through Minden, please drop in the chamber office and say hello.

The latest count

- by Bill Scott, MP -

I am pleased to be able to provide my constituents with the final population and dwelling counts from the 1986 census, as released on April 13 by Statistics Canada. While there has been an increase in the number of Canadians, the rate of increase of the population continues to decline. Statistics Canada attribute this to a falling birth rate and lower immigrations rates.

The figures show that on Census Day, June 3, 1986, Canada's population was 25,354,064 compared to 24,343,181 in 1981. The occupied dwelling count was 9,057,533. Victoria-Haliburton federal constituency grew by 9.3% between 1981 and 1986, considerably above the national increase of 4.2%. One June 3 we had a population of 97,558 in 35,624 occupied private dwellings.

The two major data releases from the 1986 Census date are yet to come. More data on age and sex, marital status and households will be released starting in July 1987. Early in 1987 the detailed data of the longer Census questionnaire focusing on incomes, occupation, employment, immigration, ethnicity and language will be released. As well, Statistics Canada will be releasing detailed results from the Census of Agriculture in June 1987.

Anyone requiring more detailed information can contact Statistics by calling, toll free, 1-800-268-1151 or by writing to Central Inquiries Service, Statistics Canada, Lobby, R.H. Coats Building, Tunney's Pasture, Ottawa, Ontario K1A 0T6.

In Haliburton County the population has increased 5.3% between 1981 and 1986 rising from 11,361 to 11,961. The 1986 census indicates there were 4,672 occupied private dwellings in the county.

The federal riding of Victoria-Haliburton registered at 9.3% population growth in the same time period. The 1986 population was 97,558 compared to 89,280 in 1981.

ATTENTION: NON-PROFIT HOUSING ORGANIZATIONS

Create non-profit housing in your community. Applications are due May 15.

Meeting Ontario's housing needs.

As first advertised last January, applications are being accepted for the development of 6,700 new non-profit housing units across Ontario. Construction of these units will begin in 1988.

Interested groups should apply now as the May 15th deadline for preliminary applications is fast approaching.

The Government of Canada through Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation, and the Province of Ontario through the Ministry of Housing, will be cost-sharing assistance directed to needy households. Market units will be fully funded by the Province of Ontario.

The program is open to all municipal non-profit, private non-profit and non-profit co-operative organizations.

Local community organizations wishing to sponsor non-profit housing projects can apply for government grants to cover the costs of establishing non-profit housing corporations.

Affordable housing for those in need.

This program helps non-profit agencies to create affordable housing for households in need of housing assistance. These include families, senior citizens or physically, developmentally and psychiatrically handicapped persons able to live independently.

In addition, some of the units will be specifically targeted to low-income singles.

Call now for complete details.

Organizations wishing to sponsor such housing projects must submit their preliminary applications by May 15, 1987.

For more information and application packages, contact your nearest Regional Office of the Ministry of Housing as soon as possible.

Students compete at track meet

A sure sign that spring is officially here, was witnessed Thursday on the playing field beside the Haliburton Highlands Secondary School. Athletes from the school competed against each other in the annual track and field competitions.

The top finishers in each of the events will represent HHSS at the Kawartha West track and field meet scheduled for this Thursday. This year HHSS will host the event, with competition getting underway at 9:30 a.m.

Taking part in the Kawartha West competition will be athletes from the two Lindsay high schools, Fenelon Falls Secondary School and Bethany Hills private school. HHSS has captured the Kawartha West team championship for the past 15 years.

The following results from last Thursday's competition list the top three finishers in each event in the order of placing. Record performances are indicated in the bold face type.

Jeweller enjoys quiet of the Highlands

If you bring a ring to Stan Griffith, he can tell a lot of things from it.

"Just by taking a close look," Stan explains, "I can tell what the person's been doing with it, and how long she's had it."

After all, Stan has been a jeweller since he was 15 years old - and that was 42 years ago.

For 41 of those years he worked in Toronto. But just last year he and his wife Jean, decided they'd had enough of big city life and moved up for good to their cottage just outside the village of Kinmount.

They've built a new house now and Stan has turned the cottage - only a few steps away from the house - into a workshop from which he runs his jewellery business.

"I can make pretty well anything here," he says. In a glass cabinet at the far end of the shop sit some of his creations, glinting in the morning sunlight.

"I like to deal with real stones," he explains, taking out a small gold ring set with an emerald surrounded by a cluster of diamonds.

"But it's funny, you know," he says. "Quite often it's the manufactured stones that look the best. 'Real stones are basically flawed - there's dirt in them, sometimes the colour isn't that good.'"

Stan takes out the microscope and places the emerald ring on the slide, and sure enough the instrument reveals a host of imperfections. What minutes before looked like a bit from some ancient treasure, now seems just a chip of green glass.

And then Stan explains: "Just to say that a stone is a ruby or an emerald isn't saying anything. Quality is the key. Two stones the same size, say rubies, can range by as much as $5000 in price. One might cost $50 and the other $5,000 because one is poor quality and the other is the best."

Taking another ring from the cabinet, one with a large yellow gem, he talks about another trick of the trade.

"If you see this in a jewellery store," he says, "chances are the salesman will tell you it's topaz. But it's not. It's a kind of yellow quartz - yellow because of some imperfection - called citrine."

Though the stone is much the colour of topaz and in fact looks very fine, it isn't, he explains, worth nearly so much as the real thing.

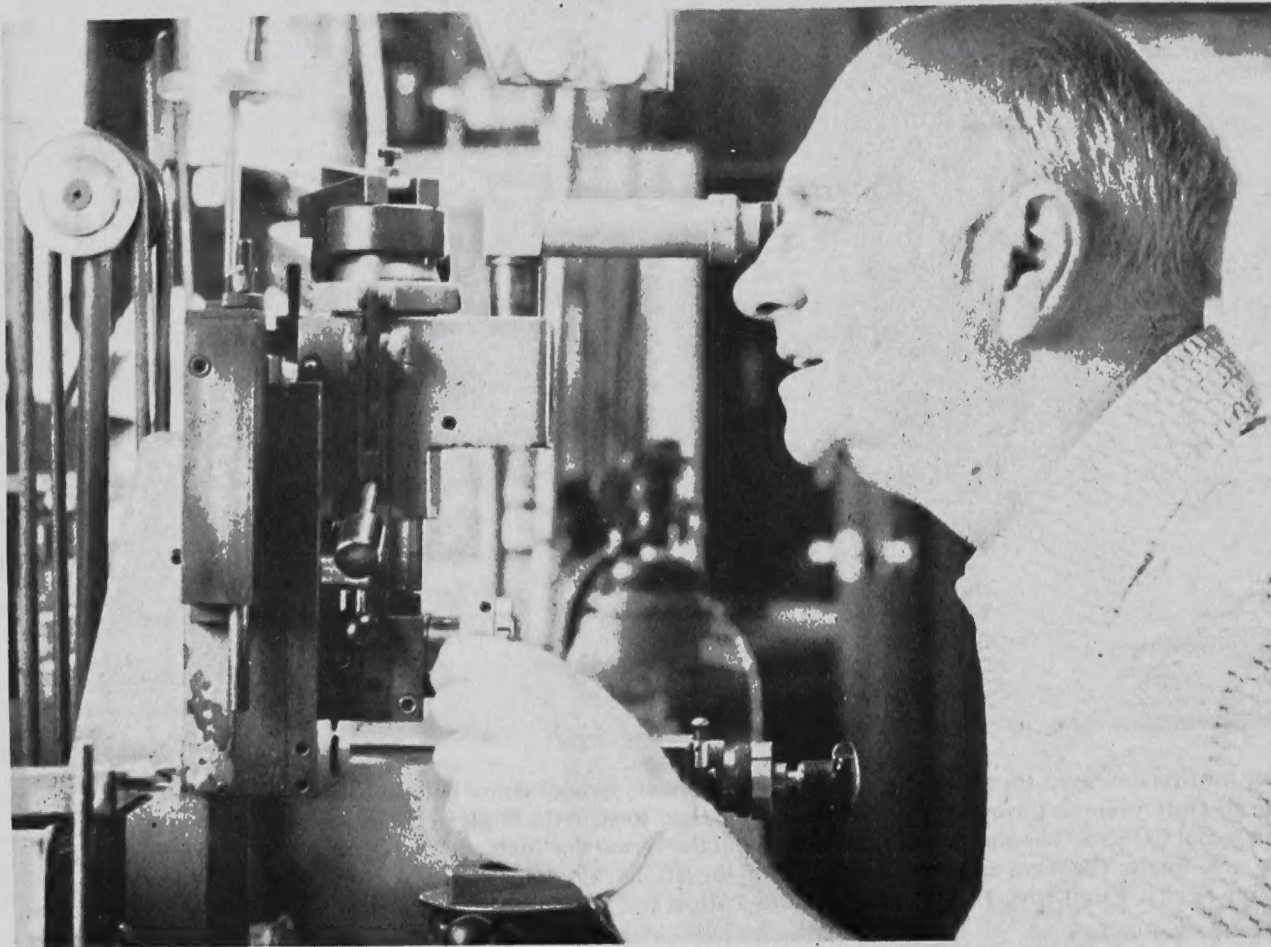

"But the stores get away with it because they don't generally charge so much for citrine," he says.

Assessing value

Stan is practiced in this aspect of the business because much of what he does involves resetting old stone in new rings.

"Often customers will come to me and ask me to take a look at their ring or earrings and tell them what they're worth," he says. "Sometimes it's worth a lot less than they think."

Occasionally when a ring

Stan Griffith uses his diamond cutter at his workshop near Kinmount to cut a design on a ring.

is brought in for repair it turns out that it isn't worth fixing. "The only thing to do then is to melt it down and make a new ring," he says.

Taking an elaborate gold ring from a drawer, he drops it into a tub of ammonia and detergent.

"The first thing I do when a ring comes through the door is to clean it," he says. "Most of the time they're dirty as the devil and you can't do anything with them until they're clean."

Attached to the tub is an ultra-sonic machine that generates super-high frequency sound waves that actually vibrate the accumulated dirt and grime from the ring. Before going into the bath, the ring was almost grey - not a pretty sight.

But after 20 minutes in the tub it sparkles, so yellow it's almost white.

Stan takes a look at the ring under the microscope. "This is no good," he says. "It was burned when they poured it into the mould."

That means there are air bubbles in the metal, small imperfections you can just see with a magnifying glass but which render the gold brittle.

"Sooner or later it'll just break," Stan explains. So he's decided to melt it down and make a new ring.

Consumers protected

In Canada, he says, when you buy a gold ring, you usually get what you pay for. If it's marked 10 karat then that's what it is. Government rules and regulations

Stan and Jean Griffith have been enjoying the peace and quiet of Haliburton County for almost 16 years.

Watch for gold-plated jewellery from overseas are strict enough that consumers are protected.

"But it's often quite a different story in other countries," he says. For example, he cites the case of a young woman of the area who recently returned from a trip abroad with a gold ring. Or at least she thought it was gold. "But I took a look at it and soon found that it was just brass-plated with a thin coat of gold," Stan says.

He believes the ring was likely made in Hong Kong, where, he says, there are few laws governing the making of jewellery.

Taking the newly cleaned gold ring, Stan places it in a hollow carved in a block of wood. Then with a torch he melts it down to a droplet of liquid metal, which he rolls back and forth over the wood - no charcoal - of the crucible.

Soon, all the impurities, the remaining dirt and solder, are gone and the molten gold seems like liquid sunlight. This he pours into another mould. It cools in minutes and from the mould Stan draws a small cube of rough gold.

"I can either make a new ring or another piece of jewellery from this," he says, "or I can send it off to a casting company and have it formed into a particular shape."

Meltdown...this chunk of gold was once a ladies ring.

In fact, Stans catalogue offers customers hundreds of different ring styles to choose from. "I just get them to leaf through the book," he says, "and they choose whatever they want. Then I order from the caster a particular ring of a particular karat."

What Stan gets back from the caster is rough and unpolished. "I have to put it through my machines," he says, "and eventually it comes out looking like something in my display case."

All that work with precious metals, carving and polishing, means that with every job a small amount of metal is lost. Some can be scraped up off the workbench and melted down again. But a lot of it, Stan explains, falls into cracks and gets trodden into the carpet.

"There," he says, pointing at the yellow sparkles in his rug, "that's gold."

In some of the larger jewellery manufacturing shops in Toronto he says, carpets that have been used for 15 years and worn out have been auctioned for as much as $20,000. "They just take the rug back to the refiners and burn it. What's left is 15 years of accumulated gold and silver."

But Stan's shop is small - one man instead of the 15 or 20 you might find in the average Toronto shop - and he's only been there a year. "So it probably wouldn't be worth anyone's while to burn my carpet," he says.

Stan doesn't miss city life one bit.

"I've always wanted to make a trip to Toronto and get on the subway with a tape recorder," he says. "Then when I get despondent, I could listen to the tape of the noise and the screech that you have to hear if you go anywhere down there."

But so far, Stan just hasn't found the time to try his idea.

When contemplating the start up of a new business, financing is the most important aspect. Initial capital can smooth the rough stages encountered in the first years.

THE HALIBURTON COUNTY DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION CAN PROVIDE FINANCIAL AND COUNSELLING ASSISTANCE TO NEW OR EXISTING BUSINESSES.

For your convenience, the manager, Andy Campbell, will be in Minden at the Municipal Building (upstairs) on Monday, May 4, 1987 from 9 a.m. to 12 noon. Any inquiries are welcome, no appointments are necessary.

Events planned

Two popular annual Minden events that are almost summer traditions will be held again this year with few changes from last year.

The Black Bear Car Rally will start in front of the Rockcliffe Tavern on May 30.

Drivers in the gruelling car race will navigate the highways and roughest byways of Haliburton County for most of the day.

The vehicles will be mud-spattered and dented by the end of the race. Drivers and co-drivers alike will be sore and bleary-eyed by the time they pull across the finish line, but that never dampens anyone's enthusiasm.

Every year the race gets more popular.

The other annual event to go ahead as planned this year is the Heineken Yard footrace.

On the afternoon of July 31, competitors will begin lining up at the start of the seven-kilometre race at Camp Onondaga off County Road Two. The finish will be in front of the Rockcliffe Tavern.

Both events are sponsored in part by the Rockcliffe Tavern.

Municipal council gave approval to the holding of these two events.

Soccer teams ready for season

by Jim Milne

The Dixie Lee soccer team will hold their second practice outdoors at the High School on Thursday April 30 at 7:00 p.m. Practices will continue on Thursdays at 7 p.m. and Sundays at 4 p.m. until Sunday league games begin on May 10 when Sunday practices cease. Everyone is welcome to the practices whether you intend to register or not.

There are now two oldtimers' teams in the league. The Huntsville team divided this year into senior and junior parts. Dixie Lee may soon have to make a similar decision because the tournament planned for May 22 in Toronto is actually for oldtimers. Our old friends, the West Rouge Blues, who are organizing the tournament have again agreed to the use of some younger players, but to be fair to them the team should recruit some older players.

Dixie Lee looks forward to the return of their college and university players. Andy Shapiera has been one of the best goalies in the league. Mike Hatkoski is one of the fastest forwards. Chris Carl, Paul Milne and Shawn Chapman have also been very effective.

The team has also enjoyed a close association with the soccer program at the High School and when the college players left last fall, a number of the High School players filled in well. Darryl Goodall is a promising goalie. Cec Smith and Kevin Barry played well in the last game against Huntsville in 1986. Paul Kuno and Barry Scully were effective in the last indoor tournament.

Muskoka District Soccer League Schedule 1987 (First half)

All games Sunday at 1 p.m.

May 10, Dixie Lee at Huntsville Seniors.

May 17 - Gravenhurst Spartans at Dixie Lee.

May 24 - Dixie Lee at Bracebridge Juniors.

May 31 Dixie Lee at Orillia.

June 7 - Parry Sound Strikers at Dixie Lee.

June 14 - Muskoka Oldtimers at Dixie Lee.

June 21 - Dixie Lee at Huntsville Juniors.

June 28 - Bracebridge Centennials at Dixie Lee.

July 5 - Dixie Lee at Gravenhurst Spartans.

Neighbourhood Watch program continues submitted

Many thanks to everyone who took part in the Neighbourhood Watch Program during the past year.

To many, the Neighbourhood Watch Program may have seemed rather quiet and of little value, but there were quite a number of instances where reports and observations helped greatly in the safety of you and your neighbours. With this in mind, it was decided to continue with Neighbourhood Watch and ask for your continued help.

Please continue to help watch what is happening on your street, report any suspicious happenings or "characters" and jot down the licence number of any cars of trucks that may be acting in a manner not normal for your area. Also keep an eye out for vandals. It is easy to report, just call 286-1431 or Zenith 50000, if after hours. Say - "This is a Neighbourhood Watch call" give your location and pass along your report - remain on the line in case further information is needed.

There will be a general meeting for all with updated information and a movie on Tuesday, April 28 at 7:30 p.m. in the Municipal Council Chambers. Hope to see you there.

THANK YOU

This brings to each one of you
Straight from the heart
A very warm Thank You
But that's just the start
For no words invented
Could even begin
To properly tell you
How thoughtful you have been.

With heartfelt thanks and deepest appreciation for your Kindness, Thoughtfulness, Prayers and your Love which has sustained me through the Dark Times.

A Very Special Thank You to the organizers, workers, Kinsmen, Rotarians, Lions, Haliburton County Fair Board, Minden Horticultural Society, Museum Staff, McMahon Feeds, Valu-mart, I.G.A. and all who participated in putting on my Special Night. With an extra special thanks for your so very generous donations, to the Times for the wonderful pictures of all who were there, and to Dr. Davidson for the tapes of the dance.

All my love,
Cliff

CANADIAN CANCER SOCIETY

Everett Harding receives Community Service award

by Donna Bailey
Executive Director

In communities across Ontario, volunteers play a vital role in the delivery of the many social programs and services that help to enrich the lives and enhance the well-being of their fellow community members.

To honour those volunteers, the Ministry of Community and Social Services has established various volunteer awards programs.

One such program is the "Community Service Awards." Ten volunteers in each of the four Ministry of Community and Social Services regions are recognized for their outstanding contribution working as volunteers in a ministry-funded program.

We are pleased to announce that one of our volunteers, Everett Harding, has been honoured in recognition of his work to his community, especially through Haliburton County Home Support Services volunteer work, by being chosen as one of the ten in our area to receive this award. Congratulations! You well deserve this recognition.

Everett has been a volunteer Director for Haliburton County Home Support Services for 6 years. He drives seniors and disabled persons to appointments and shopping. He gathers and delivers food around Haliburton County and Toronto areas. He delivers clothing to missions and safe houses for battered women in Toronto areas. He provides necessities to families burnt out in fires. He gives out Christmas gifts he has gathered to children that would otherwise do without. He works with all local churches to help the less fortunate. In all, he has been helping the needy for over 30 years.

Everett and his wife Lorraine, will travel to Kingston on May 1 to receive this special award.

Helen Henderson, our president and her husband Ken, will also be in attendance during this prestigious ceremony.

kid's korner

by Jean Lacey

Hi kids!

Here is another puzzle for you with a word list. Look in the diagram of letters for the words given in the list. Find them by reading up, down, forward, backward and diagonally. They are all in a straight line and do not skip letters. Circle the words in the diagram and cross it off the list.

It's as easy as that. have fun!

Q. Why can't you trust a tree?

A. It's a shady character.

Q. How does the sun feel about shining?

A. It's all in a ray's work.

Q. Why did the tow truck speed to the accident?

A. It was wreck-less.

Q. Why was the fruit tree sad?

A. It was always getting picked on.

Q. When is a pot boiling mad?

A. When it won't simmer down.

Guests with Annie and Joan Kernohan over the holiday weekend were Barb and Tom Parrish of Willowdale.

Mr. and Mrs. Alf McCall spent last week with relatives and friends in London.

Mr. and Mrs. Ron Cox of Peterborough visited on the holiday with his mother Mrs. Lyman Cox.

Bev Forbes was happy to be home for last weekend and her mother Mary and husband Cline Goldsmith of Oshawa brought her here. Bev's address if anyone would like to drop her a line is Lyndhurst Lodge, 520 Sutherland Drive, Room 212, Toronto M4G 3V9 and visiting hours are weekdays 12 to 9 and Saturday and Sunday 12 to 9.

Guests at various times with Hilda and Stewart Harrison included Larry Harrison and family, Mr. and Mrs. Gil Brooks and the Gary Kyliès and are all from Toronto or Pickering area.

Violet Thornett enjoyed a visit with her daughter and husband from Oshawa.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Marsh are back after enjoying Easter with their family at Woodstock.

Good birthday wishes go to Kathleen Nesbitt who is at Hyland Crest Home.

Easter Sunday was a pleasant one for Irene and Bill Moore as they spent that day at the Earl Bird home and present were Helen and Lesley Brydson of Bracebridge, Stephen Brydson, Laura and Mike Bird all of Toronto and Jeff, Eden and Jason Moore of Bramalea.

Jean and Howard Scott had a nice visit with the Boyd Jarvis family in Geraldton.

Larry and Sonya Harrison family enjoyed a visit Saturday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Sedgewick.

Charlotte O'Neill was away on Easter weekend on a flying trip to Edmonton and attended the wedding of her grandson Rick Zimmer and seeing part of Edmonton's gigantic mall.

At the Tuesday night wuchre games at Gelert Centre on April 21 winners were lone hands Marvis Burk, Joyce and Earl Schellenberg, Mervin Gilbert and Bessie Burk. Next games will be May 5.

Winner of the Easter basket of groceries at Kinmount Legion was Lil

Platt, congratulations to her.

Guests with Alice Morrison on Easter weekend were Glenda and Myles Morrison and Brent of Brantford.

Harry and Jenny Austen have another grand-daughter. A new daughter for Tim and Brenda Carroll - congratulations to all.

Marjorie Cook, a former resident, has been visiting with Irene and Sandy Stewart.

We are pleased to report that Edna McElwain is feeling much better and Lorraine Martin is home once more.

Guests at the Milt Sears at various times over the holiday weekend were Mike, April, Dana and Jeanette Leaman, Reggie Leaman all of Queensville, Islay Warburton, Jeremy and Jason of Toronto and Carol and Reg Leaman and Karen of Keswick.

Hello Readers:

Sorry I missed last week with the news and there will not be much this time as I am still on the sick list.

Mr. Burgess was in charge of the service Sunday evening and Father Elliott from the Anglican Church on Tuesday morning. He also had communion for the residents on Saturday morning.

The movies of the week I missed were "Yellowstone in Winter" and "Island of Coral".

The tea party ladies came from Haliburton and served a real nice tea. This past week the ladies from Lutterworth Pines came. The lunch was delicious and the singing after was much enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Chipman and children of Newfoundland came on Friday to see her father Charlie Brohm. We at Hyland Crest extend our deepest sympathy to the family and friends of Charlie Brohm who passed away.

Winnie Barnum spent Easter Sunday with her son's family. Bingo was held Monday night and there were 2 big winners Violet Thornett and Alice Todd.

On Tuesday Tessa Davis was 95 years young and still enjoying life. Many more Tessa.

Quiz game 14-18 Lola Prentice one of the winning team and Edna Cowan captain of the losing team. All for this time.

The stress of child rearing

by Faith Aggett

New parents-to-be or those freshly initiated into parenthood may be shocked to hear someone remark that children devour their parents. But as time passes and we become old hands at this occupation, we realize that you can't raise children without giving up a big piece of yourself.

The trouble with child rearing is that it looks ridiculously easy when you are the child. We view the efforts of our parents and smugly say, "We won't treat our children that way." Dr. Spock very sensibly points out in the first chapter of Baby and Child Care that parents are human, that some children are a lot more difficult than others and that, at best, there's a lot of hard work and deprivation in raising children. How many of us remember people warning us before the birth of our first child how our marriage will change - it may be better or worse, but it will definitely change?

There is no doubt that with the coming of children, many couples grow further apart. Today, in our society, parenthood is much more a commitment for life than is marriage. Parents and children are stuck with each other and children can cause stress in parents anywhere along the life cycle. In fact till the end of their parents' lives, many children tend to look to them for help and comfort.

The more children the more stress on the parents. In many marriages the first real strain between the couple comes with the arrival of a colicky, angry baby. Even if the baby is "good," looking after it takes more time than either young parent suspected. What stresses will develop are totally unpredictable as a new person with a mind of his own enters the family.

The fatigue of a mother is the single most important element in a family's emotional well-being. All young mothers get tired and must learn to pace themselves before they get over-tired. Arguments over the discipline of the children lead to a lot of marital strife. The preschool years are difficult and could bring out differences of opinion between parents that they never knew they had, until they had children. Even the nicest, most "normal" child may well turn out to be a family tyrant, skilfully manipulating his parents into spending money on things they don't need - taking outings they aren't interested in - and in view of the child's comfort, decorating their home according to the child's needs.

Many grandparents, especially grandmother's, relive the memories of the early phase of their own parenthood in observing the growth of their grandchildren. Relieved of the immediate responsibilities of rearing children, they are often able to enjoy their grandchildren more than they enjoyed their own children.

To the young couple struggling with their own growth and that of their children, it seems a long time to wait. What we should all wish for young parents then, is that they live to enjoy a healthy and wise old age!

BIRTHS

CARROLL

Tim and Brenda Carroll of Nipigon are happy to announce the safe arrival of their daughter Sarah Kate. Born April 14, weighing 6 lbs 10 1/2 oz. Proud grandparents are Harry and Jenny Austen of Minden. Another niece for Matthew.

CARD OF THANKS

I would like to thank all those who donated to and participated in the appreciation night for Cliff Lacey. It was heartening to see the tremendous support from our community. Thanks again.
Jim McMahon.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to thank everyone who our 25th wedding anniversary a day to remember. Especially Llyn and Dennis who put together a marvellous party, Debbie and Warren for the great supper, also Michael for taking so many pictures. It certainly was a wonderful surprise. Thanks Fred and Brenda for coming so far (England). Once again, our heartfelt thanks to everyone.

Peter & Beulah Stribling.

IN MEMORIAM

NESBITT: In loving memory of a dear father and grandfather, George, who passed away April 17, 1982. So many things have happened. Since you were called away So many things we could have shared. Had you been here to stay. So many times we've tried To hear your voice and see your smile.

IN MEMORIAM

To sit with you and talk a while
To be together in the same old way,
Would be our greatest wish today.
So treasure him Lord in the Garden of Rest.
For when on earth, he was really the best.
Never to be forgotten,
daughter Joyce, grandchildren and great grandchildren.
